XIth FORESIGHT TRAINING COURSE
Changes in Regulatory Sciences in the EU

How to move from a reactive to a multi-stakeholder proactive attitude

25-27 October, 2018

Pavia (Italy) – Istituti Clinici Scientifici Maugeri

On October 25-27, 2018 Istituti Clinici Scientifici Maugeri in Pavia (Italy) will host the XIth Foresight Training Course “Change in Regulatory Sciences in the EU – How to move from a reactive to a multi-stakeholders proactive attitude”.

Organized by Fondazione per la Ricerca Farmacologica Gianni Benzi Onlus and Master in Regulatory Science “Gianni Benzi” of the University of Pavia, in collaboration with Istituti Clinici Scientifici Maugeri, SIAR (Società Italiana Attività Regolatorie), this edition is focused on the challenge to align scientific and patients’ objectives with regulatory requirements along the whole developmental process of health products.

This challenge involves all the stakeholders: they should be aware of the criteria by which the authorisation and access to products will be measured and granted an approval to cover patients’ specific needs.

The XI Foresight Training Course is aimed at involving and networking people to properly understand the many novelties of the EU system and contributing to their implementation to anticipate on the market good medicines and other products for human health and wellbeing.

Key opinion leaders and experts coming from all over Europe will tackle three main topics: health data supporting medicines and healthcare, also in the light of the GDPR; the new era of medical devices in Europe; rare diseases and Orphan Medicinal Product Regulation.

The course will be held in English and it represents a great opportunity for companies, regulatory experts, patients, academia, researchers and post-degree students to discuss the recent updates in regulatory sciences.

To participate in the XI Foresight Training Course, please download and fill in the registration form.

The full programme of the course will follow.
